KingSoft Office Professional has been completely redesigned to feature a new interface. This slick office software includes a word processor, a spreadsheet builder and a presentation creator, which is sufficient for home users or students who simply need to create text documents, spreadsheets or slide show presentations. Business users who want office software that includes applications such as an email client, database manager or publishing platform as well will have to look elsewhere for a more complete office software suite.

KingSoft Writer, its word processor, is a modest document application that has a nice-looking interface and includes most features you would need for basic document creating and editing. This application is, however, missing a handful of features we would like to see included such as a grammar checker, an in-program thesaurus and translation abilities. Additionally, KingSoft's interface, although attractive, has menus that are a different style than what you may be used to, handing you a bit of a learning curve.

Creating a budget, invoice or other financial document is very simple with KingSoft Spreadsheets. This application includes just about any feature you would need in a spreadsheet builder. Our biggest issue was navigating the application, as it does have a bit of a different menu system than you may have used in the past. But we were still able to create spreadsheets; it just took a little longer to locate some features and tools.

We are really impressed with KingSoft Presentation, its slide show creator. Although this application's menu too is different, the interface is familiar and easy to use. We had no difficulty creating a slide show presentation with this application and we like that it includes many slide themes, styles and layouts to choose from. Additionally, you can easily add charts, pictures and animations to your slides.

KingSoft works with most of the file formats that are used today, but we were disappointed to find that it doesn't support .pptx files, Microsoft PowerPoint's most recent file format. However, you won't have trouble with the newer document or spreadsheet files .docx and .xlsx along with a handful of older file formats.

You can contact KingSoft by email or phone if you need help or support with any of its office software applications. Additionally, KingSoft offers frequently asked questions, tutorials a knowledgebase and the user manual online.

Summary:

KingSoft Office Professional is sufficient office software if you are only looking for the basics, which include a word processor, spreadsheet builder and presentation creator. If you need an office software suite that includes more than that, KingSoft won't be satisfactory.
